

A century ago, Vauxhall was a leading arts and crafts district, populated by glassblowers, potters and sculptors. Today, the area is one of London's hottest new arts destinations - the burgeoning Vauxhall Gallery District is a place to discover contemporary art.

Damien Hirst's 37,000 sq ft, Newport Street Gallery presents works from his art collection. Vauxhall's pioneering contemporary art space, Beaconsfield, is recognised for its groundbreaking commissions in the former Lambeth Ragged School (also located on Newport Street).

Gasworks is renowned for launching the careers of many UK and international artists whilst Charles Asprey's Cabinet Gallery on Vauxhall Pleasure Gardens has a cutting edge design that mirrors the traditional pavilions that once populated the historic gardens.

And make sure you visit the other art spaces nearby; The Sunday Painter and Danielle Arnaud Gallery, Corvi-Mora and Tate Britain just across the river.
